A poem

Princes and princesses make their merry way through tales and stories
we read every day.
Princesses are locked
in castles and towers, princes fight to save them
for many long hours.
Villains are creeping
through forests so green
looking for ways
to upset kings and queens.
These tales of adventure
and heroes so bold,
of witches and dragons
are often retold
and we all know that every ending will be happy ever after when princesses are free!

1. Rule a margin down the left side of each sheet of paper.
2. Fold each sheet of paper into thirds.
3. Open out the pages.

4. Draw a character on each page. Make sure the head is in the top section, the body is in middle section and the legs and feet are in the bottom section.

5. Refold each sheet of paper.
6. Open each sheet of paper.
7. Use a ruler and pencil to rule a line along each fold.
8. Stack the pages.

9. Staple the pages in a straight line inside the margin,

10. Carefully cut each page along each line to the ruled margin.

11. Flip one section of the pages over to make funny characters.

Think of a name for each new character you make when you flip the page sections.

Find the words

Your spelling words are hidden in these sentences. Read the story and loop the words using coloured pencils.

Once upon a time in a faraway kingdom a king built a huge palace. It was shaped like a castle with turrets and secret rooms for Prince Max and Princess Amelia to play adventure games. Not everyone was happy that the king had built a castle in the country. Jax, a wicked villain did not like hearing the prince and princess as they played. "They're too noisy!" he'd growl as he crept through the forest near the castle. Jax brewed a sleeping potion and spread it around the gardens. Everyone who walked on the grass slipped to the ground and fell into a deep sleep. The grass grew long and the trees surrounded the castle as the people slept for one hundred years.

Mimosa the fairy was on a problem solving quest so she could earn her magic wand. As she glided over the countryside, she was surprised to see the castle hidden amongst the trees. She was even more surprised to see people asleep in the long grass. "Here is my quest," she thought, "I'll free the palace and its sleeping people."

Mimosa landed on a tree and watched. She saw Jax hobble through long grass and heard him cackling. "Why are you making that nasty sound?" she asked him.

He laughed. "I had my revenge on those noisy children! They've been asleep for one hundred years!" Mimosa looked at him.

"Did you tell them they were too noisy?" she asked.

"Um no I didn't" Jax answered.

"Don't you think they have slept for long enough?" she asked.

"Oh I suppose so." Jax replied in a huff. He waved his magic wand and called "Abracadabra all awake!"

The grass became shorter, the trees moved apart and the people stretched and yawned.

"Next time," Mimosa said quietly, "Tell people if you have a problem. I'm sure they'll be happy to help." With a final glance at Jax, the fairy heroine flew away.

I am a funny fairy
I live amongst the trees
When I try to fly about
I always start to sneeze!

I love to eat a juicy peach
When paddling in the sea
So I can clean my hands and face
Before I drink my tea!

A picnic is a yummy meal
When sitting on the beach
But sand gets in my sandwiches
And really makes me screech!

A monkey and a chimpanzee
As hairy as can be Stood eating honey from a hive
Watched by a bumblebee.
